An introduction to the types of Law Firms in Thailand

1. AN INTRODUCTION TO THE TYPES OF LAW FIRMS IN THAILAND

To assist one in choosing the right law firm for the job, a brief description of the law firms in Thailand is appropriate. Law firms in Thailand can be divided into the following categories:

i) Local Thai Firms

These are firms which engage in litigation as the bulk of their practice and constitute the majority number of law firms in Thailand. Their practice is monolingual for the most part.

ii) International Law Firms

These firms are subsidiaries or branches of their overseas "parents" and are often extensions of their parents' practice groups. They mainly advise on transactional work and foreign laws and through their network are able to provide "fly-in expertise" on particular projects. They do not usually engage in the practice of Thai law although increasing competition is forcing them to. These firms are what one would call "foreign law advisors" in jurisdictions such as Japan or Singapore where foreign lawyers are regulated.

iii) Multi-domestic Law Firms

These are law firms which are located in more than one jurisdiction and engage in the practice of law of the jurisdiction where they are located. They may or may not have an equity relationship with their other offices, but are essentially independent of one another, except for certain common policies, rules of practice and some "fly in" capability. The majority of their lawyers have law degrees from more than one country. Their practice may be regarded as "international" only in the sense that a significant number of their clients are foreign companies doing business in Thailand and they are conversant with transnational legal problems. In consequence, their practice is multilingual.

iv) International Accounting Firms

Many international accounting firms have established legal consultancy companies as an adjunct to their mainstream business. Even though these companies dispense legal advice they are not regarded as law firms in the true sense of the word.

We regard ourselves as a multi-domestic law firm (Category III).

The Firm In General

2. THE FIRM IN GENERAL

This law firm was founded by a U.S. attorney, Mr. Charles Warren Kirkwood, as a Registered Ordinary Partnership, in Bangkok, on 4 July 1966 and went through various transformations. The firm's first offices were in the BOAC building (now the site of Gaysorn Plaza) at the Rajprasong Intersection. The firm moved its offices to the South East Insurance Building, 315 Silom Road, in 1969, and then to the Bangkok Bank Headquarters Building on Silom Road in 1983. In October 1994, it moved to its present premises on the 18th Floor of Sathorn City Tower, 175 South Sathorn Road.

In November 1969, an international law partnership was formed by Messrs. Kirkwood, Kaplan, Russin and Vecchi incorporating the original R.O.P. At one time or the other, the firm had offices in North and South Americas, the Caribbean the Middle East and Saigon (closed down during the Vietnam War, but re-opened after the unification), Singapore and Jakarta. But some of these offices were closed down for various reasons.

In 1998, the Asian offices of the firm comprising Bangkok, Vietnam and Taipei, withdrew from the main partnership and focused its practice in Asia under the name of Russin & Vecchi (R&V). However, it still maintains a friendly alliance with the old partnership which now has offices in Washington D.C., New York, Santo Domingo and Moscow.

The purpose of the firm is to practice law and to give legal counsel and advice through offices located in various countries and staffed on a multinational basis.

INTERNATIONAL LEGAL COUNSELLORS THAILAND (ILCT) is the official name of the Bangkok Office.

ILCT is a member of Meritas, a network of 200 leading law firms in major cities of the world.

ILCT Practice Areas

3. I L C T PRACTICE AREAS

In Thailand, the firm is known as International Legal Counsellors Thailand, or "I L C T". With 9 resident partners and, as of these writing 15 associate lawyers, plus 19 trained paralegals, most of whom are multilingual, together with other support staff, we are 65 in number. With our over 51-year history, ILCT was one of the pioneer law offices engaging in the business law practice in Thailand. We have earned our reputation by consciously practicing in a group format and using personnel of diverse educational backgrounds to form teams to deal with each matter by applying maximum diversified expertise. By this method and through our inter-office matrix system, we have developed an internationalist approach and, indeed, the overwhelming majority of our clients have an international connection, whether by their make-up or by the type of transactions in which they are engaged.

We are a full-service law firm. Among the types of matters handled by our lawyers in Bangkok are the following:

3.1 Antitrust (Trade Competition)

Work in this field includes advising clients on compliance with the Trade Competition Act, especially the procedures to be followed in mergers and acquisitions. We also represent clients before the regulatory agencies concerned.

3.2 Banking and Finance

Work in this field includes advising banks, finance companies, insurance companies and the likes on commercial and regulatory matters; often in connection with advising these clients on how to structure their innovative financing products. We have helped structure new forms of loan, equity and quasi-equity transactions. We frequently are engaged to draft or review both local and international loan transactions, including the syndications, drafting of multicurrency loans, and the structuring and implementation of various forms of security for credit extended as well as with the creation of exotic financing and securitization instruments. We have dealt with loan work out situations. We have worked with more than 75 foreign financial institutions and their counsel with regard to their interests in Thailand, in one form or another. We also have been retained to represent borrowers, although this is relatively less frequent due to the probability of a conflict of interest.

We assisted among others with the Thai legal aspects of the global mergers of the Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi Bank and of the Chemical Bank-Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A.

All of our non-U.S. offices serve as general counsel to one or more local financial institutions or branches of foreign financial institutions. It is common for the same financial institution to use our services wherever we are located.

3.3 Contract Negotiations

We assist clients in negotiating and drafting contracts of every type in Thai and English vis-à-vis private and government parties.
